This, briefly, is EIA

The Electronic Industries Association is a non-profit organization representing manufacturers of electronic products. The following are some of the objectives of EIA:

- to provide a forum within the framework of our national laws and to discuss matters affecting the legitimate interests of the industry and to implement the policies of the Association.

- to coordinate and convey the views of Association members to appropriate bodies and allied industry organizations on legislative and regulatory matters.

- to assist the Department of Defense and the Armed Services in obtaining the most advanced and reliable products and scientific developments from industry through an interchange of information and ideas.

- to stimulate public awareness of the vital role of the electronics industry in national defense, space exploration, communication, education and entertainment, and the evolution of industrial technologies.

-to advance the growth and technological progress of the industry by providing facilities and staff assistance in the development and dissemination of technical and related information, the registration of certain new products, and participation in National and International Standardization.

ELA accomplishes its objectives through an organization of Divisions, Groups and Departments. The Departments provide support to Divisions and Groups in specialty and engineering/technical areas. More than five hundred EIA member companies furnish the membership for hundreds of Committees, Panels and Working Groups which provide the industry expertise for specific efforts.
